Fancy Garments in Demand.

Manager and Lessee C. J. Ferguson, of the Pendleton Woolen Milis, has been unable to fill all the heavy castern orderse for his fancy garmenta, and has been compelled to stop their manufacture for this season to order to eather up with his son, in order to catch up with his Indian robe trade. The sale of the smoking jackets, golf coats, Ferguson smoking jackets, golf coats, Ferguson hunting and working coats, has surpassed all Mr. Ferguson's fondest expectations. The heaviest demand for the goods came from the eastern states, and at this time the stock at the mill has been sold out so close that but one or two of the garments remain on hand.
